

Small details with big impact.

The new Firstenberg Tower at Southwest extends our commitment to delivering advanced health care with a human touch by understanding the importance of support from loved ones. Each patient room at the new Firstenberg Tower offers plenty of space for family and friends. Sofa beds and lounge chairs in the patient room and thoughtful perches outside provide a convenient place to rest when patient privacy or family consultation with a physician is needed. At Southwest, we're creating an environment that represents the epitome of care.
